Hello and welcome to the first Lebanese Collegiate Network newsletter, reCap. “reCap” is a quarterly publication of the LCN. As President, I am excited about the content of our newsletter, which introduces and updates you on the successes of the LCN as well as its future goals. In this first edition, read up on our events, and programs as well as those of subscribing University Lebanese Clubs’ (ULC).

Since September, we have increased our ULC membership to include 12 clubs nationwide. We have had 2 fundraisers, one in Los Angeles, California and one in Washington, D.C. We are also very excited about our first convention, which will take place on the University of Maryland at College Park campus on March 28-30, 2008.

Within 3 months of our official launch, the LCN became a non-profit 501c3 organization incorporated in the State of California. This accomplishment is a reflection of our board’s core values: Professionalism, Pride, and Perseverance. These values are further channeled towards the professional and academic development of Lebanese students and alumni.

This is the first issue of many to come. With your tax-deductible donations and active participation, we promise to deliver quality programming and enhance the Lebanese student experience here in the United States.

Enjoy reading reCap!

Happy Holidays,
Patrick Sislian
